RIDE WITH US!

Biking to class is a fun and healthy alternative to driving your car. Not only is it good for the environment, it'll save you money, too. New to riding? We've got you covered!

SIU Sustainability has partnered with Recreational Sports and Services to provide participants with free introductory urban cycling classes. The classes will focus on basic bicycle skills, commuting in urban areas and road safety - all while exploring a couple of routes in Carbondale.

There is no additional charge for this class! It is helpful if you already have a bike for the class. However, a limited number of loaner bikes may be available on a first-come basis.

We will offer four class sessions this spring. Each session will meet twice that week, on Tuesday and Friday.
